

Beach Outfalls

Brevard County completed a Beach Outfalls Study in FY06-07 to determine whether it was feasible to remove any of the 17 existing stormwater outfalls along Central Brevard County beaches. The study concluded that it was not practical to remove them, but modifications could be made that would help reduce the stormwater discharge into the ocean. The County has applied for a grant from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection to partially reimburse the County for the construction of these systems. This expenditure supports beach renourishment efforts and future renourishment funding applications.
